Kelsey Barber is an associate in the firm's Litigation Department. She devotes her practice to general civil litigation, contract law, catastrophic tort, complex business litigation and appellate cases.

During law school, Kelsey was an editor of the Rutgers Journal of Public Policy and spearheaded Youth Court, a pro bono youth organization dedicated to teaching legal and ethical youth adjudication for school disciplinary actions in Camden.

Following law school, Kelsey served as a law clerk to the Honorable Linda Grasso Jones in the Monmouth County Courthouse, Civil Division. As a judicial clerk, she also acted as a court-appointed mediator.

After her clerkship, Kelsey worked in established plaintiff- and defense-oriented firms, including Schibell & Mennie, LLC, and Orlovsky Moody Schaaff & Conlon.
